MUSLIM OF INDIA

Their Literature on Education, History, Politics, Religion, Socio Economic and Communal Problems

Edited by
MOHAMMED HAROON
M.A., M.Lib.Sc.
Assistant University Librarian
University of Delhi

ABOUT THE BOOK

The Muslims possess a distinct and impressive identity in the variegated milieu of social and national life of India. Though the community has undergone vicissitudes of unthinkable dimensions, yet so deep rooted are its traditions and culture that there has been an uninterrupted continuity in their march ahead. There has never been a dearth of thinkers and writers who have thought and written almost on every aspect of Muslim life in India. A galaxy to great and glorious Muslim men adorns the annals of India. Their contributions to the freedom struggle has never been less than anyone else. In post-independene years, the faith of the Muslims in their Indianness has helped them to overcome the harrowing experience during the twilight of the partition days. A lot of literature on the Muslims of India is flowing every year in the form of news items, general articles, pamphlets, books and research theses and there is always an urgent need to organise this information for fruitful utilisation. The present bibliography covers the publications theses from the earliest and articles published between 1980-1987 on all aspects of Muslims in India—their leaders, their religion, their education, their institutions, their politics, their personal laws, their customs and lastly the Hindu-Muslim relations. The information contained in over 3000 bibliographical entries in the present work has been distilled from about 150 journals and newspapers, about 500 books and about 100 research theses. The information about research theses is not only from the universities in India but also from the universities abroad Great Britain, USA and other countries.

UNIVERSITY IN THE THIRD WORLD

Dr. A. H. Hommadi
Ex-President Foundation of Technical Institutes and
Professor of Industrial Engineering Management
Baghdad, IRAQ

Deals with perspectives, planning and management of the University Education in the Third World. It suggests the ways and means along which the educational planners and administrators of University Education should think and work systematically so that the nature and contents of University education can be modified to make higher Education a meaningful and living reality and not merely a fossilized academic appendage.

This book is a challenge to the educational planners and academic administrators. Education is a continuous process. its aim, contents and infrastructure has to be need based. On the one hand; none can deny the need for professionalisation but the products of Universities have come out angry and defeated after the completion of their education. The degrees seem to be meaningless and their training a waste. Planners have to evolve a value system along with professional growth so that the students are not frustrated and do not resort to violent agitations and burning of the temples of learning, which has happened in some of the places in the Third World. This work is the study of the structure of University planning, organisation and management. It provides a broader perspective to planners and urges them to face the social reality in the Third World.

By the Same Author

HIGHER EDUCATION IN THE THIRD WORLD

It attempts a comprehensive analysis of the existing university education system in the Third World, the problems pertaining to higher education and their solutions. The higher education during the colonial rule, the revolutionary changes in science and technology in other parts of the world, and the emerging realities in the society.
